CHARACTER IN THE HAIR. Colors and Thickness That Indicate Mental Traits.

One of those pseudo scientists who are always figuring out infallible indications of the human character from the peculiarities of the ears, nose, eyes, hands or feet has formulated a set of rules by which character may be read in the hair.

Light hair in men indicates that they are smart and conceited, and if they do not marry until late in life they grow cross and selfish.

Men with fine brown hair, light or dark, make the best husbands, be ing generous, considerate, affectionate, truthful. The darker the brown, however, the more likelihood that selfish traits will assert themselves.

If a man's hair turns gray prematurely, it is a sign that he is a good fellow. Such men are always brainy, sympathetic and very honorable The hair turns white from being overscrupulous in money matters and friendship oftener than it does through grieving or shortcomings.

Redheaded people, whether the hair be coarse or fine, are nearly always very smart, quick to learn, resourceful and tactful to the point of loss of temper, but when a redheaded person is stupid he or she is a ver-

Red hair in men often goes with brains, and so many red haired men have been successful that "redheadblond are affectionate, but impulsive and easily moved to causeless jeal onsy and violent demonstrations, but prone to forgiving and forgetting. They are incomparable as companions as long as they are humored, but will not stick to a companion in adversity.

Dark brown hair on women is in 999 cases out of 1,000 indicative of a loyalty to a worthy object that cannot be shaken by ill fortune.

The coarseness or fineness of hair is thought to be a sure index of the animal as well as intellectual development. Heavy hair, like horsehair, is found on blacksmiths and gladiators, while professional men have hair that is fine almost to silk

Fine black hair in women shows a high strung and sensitive disposition, while men with coarse black hair are nearly always mean.

All women with dark hair are more tempestuous than those with light hair, but are not as neat housekeepers as those of fair hair. Dark haired women are rarely of a saving disposition.

The highest development of woman seems to be under chestnut hair. which is a compromise between the pronounced blond and dark tones .-New York Journal.

The GENETIE is the oldest paper in the country, and its usefulness has bee

Features-United Press Dispatches, Wash ington and Richmond correspondence, daily market reports, Local News, and matters of interest to Virginia, but more especially to this city and section of Virginia. In its columns has always been found a nirror of passing events, and the careful tion has ever been its aim. The GAZETTE situated as it is so close to Washington, the great centre of news, enjoys daily the benefi of the United Press Dispatches from every part of the world; hence its patrons can read from its columns in the evening what transpired that day in every portion of the United States as well as from every part of the habitable globe. Consequently it is an every-day occurrence for the GAZETTE to publish telegrams from the various Europeau capitals about twelve or fifteen hours earlier than the morning papers Correspondence from Washington, Bichmond, and every section of Virginia is published regularly, and all events of interest oc-wealth are to be found in the columns of the GAZETTE The Local Department furnishes a complete history of everything that occurs in and near careful attention. Another feature that serves to make the GAZETTE a great desideratum with merchants is its afternoon Market Reports from all the great centers of the country.
